“When I tell people my job, they’re like, ‘That’s not a job, that’s so fun!’ ” says art dealer and curator Lolita Cros. Indeed, Parisian-born, New York-based Cros has a kind of artist’s dream job: With a longstanding gig at The Wing, Cros is able to showcase new and established female artists on the walls of its four locations (with many more on the way). “The goal is to really represent the different facets of femininity,” she tells Vogue. “Every artist very much has their own message, but they all work together by being strong female leaders.”
